A college gives space to students to learn and explore their interests in different fields be it music, theatre, debate, drama and the like. From cultural fests to various workshops, there are various ways that help students tap into their creativity and push boundaries.

College clubs are another great way to explore one's creativity. City campuses are home to some unique clubs that are formed and run by students. From press and literature clubs to music and dance clubs, colleges have it all. Here's a look at some of the interesting clubs of colleges in the city.

SARGAM MUSIC CLUB

This premier engineering Institute has a popular music club 'Sargam' which consists of 70 members. It conducts a variety of events like IIT-Gn's Got Talent, open club talent, open mic sessions and even events in its intra college cultural festival 'Jashn'.

"The club members also indulge in frequent jamming sessions and come up with original compositions. The club meets for at least three days a week. Sargam members have also won medals at musical duet events during Inter IIT cultural meet," says Ratul Chakraborty, club secretary and a fourth year student.

PRESS CLUB

DA-IICT's Press Club which was set up in 2002 is one of the oldest clubs at the Institute. Its motto was to be inclusive and provide democratic space to students to express themselves freely
